The "Last Week Work" folder simply contains finalized versions of some critical deliverables for the project. It contains the most updated project source code with final features, fixes, and tests. It contains all of the final project documents such as the SRS, and UML diagrams. Lastly it contains the actual exe installer for our game.

The last page of this document shows a history of commits with member names, and labels that generally describe each commit. Our team did allot of merging code and coordinating outside of GitHub, so the history of actual commits is relatively short, since they are mainly updates of our official code and work, at the start/end of each iteration. The commits that are labeled "iteration1", "iteration2", etc, are commits with the most updated official work to start that iteration, in order to keep everyone on the same page.
